BETTY MILLER EXHIBITS HERE

"The Silent World," a show of recent paintings and assemblage by Betty Miller will open Sunday, February 6 at the Washburn Art Center. Betty has chosen 15 pieces for the show, which she describes as showing her relationship to the world as a deaf child.

The paintings are done in oils and acrylics while the assemblage employs foam, metal and various other materials.

Although she has recently exhibited several of her works at the Conference for Art for the Deaf in Los Angeles, "The Silent World" is Betty's first one-woman show. Open houses are scheduled for 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. on Sunday and Monday, February 6 and 7. The exhibit will run through February 25.
